The Arkansas Department of Transportation (ARDOT) is proposing 3.2 miles of improvements to Highway 5 between North Reynolds Road (also known as Highway 183) and North Alexander Road (at the Pulaski County Line).

The map on your the screen shows the location of the project. Currently, this section of Highway 5 is a two-lane, open-shoulder road.

Project Overview

- 3.2 miles of improvements
- Widening to 4 lanes with a painted median
- 10-foot-wide sidepath
- 5-foot-wide sidewalk
- Connecting roads realignment
- Relieve traffic congestion
- Enhance safety
- Improve alternate route for I-30

The diagram shows a top-down view of a four-lane highway. Two vertical blue lines represent the painted median, with a double-headed blue arrow between them indicating two-way traffic. Below the median, three blue car icons are shown driving towards the viewer, representing traffic flow in both directions.

The proposed improvements would widen Highway 5 to four lanes with a painted median along with curb and gutter and match the adjacent Highway 5 sections to the east and west of the project. A 10-foot-wide sidepath is proposed on the north side of Highway 5 and a 5-foot-wide sidewalk on the south side.

The proposed widening is anticipated to realign connecting roads, relieve traffic congestion, enhance safety, and improve an alternate route for I-30.

The typical section for the proposed widening of Highway 5 consists of four 11-foot-wide travel lanes, and one 12-foot-wide painted median.

A 10-foot-wide sidepath with a 6-foot-wide Grass Berm is proposed on the north side of Highway 5 and a 5-foot-wide sidewalk with a 3-foot-wide Grass Berm on the south side.
